The ACTING COLONIAL SECRETARY-I have prepared a return which I shall be happy to show to hos, members which shows the result to various officials through losing this power of remitting, but why I expressly brought this matter before Council is that I wanted to disabuse the public mind of the erroneous idea which appears to pravail that every one is going to receive a large increase of salary. In my own case I have not the smallest doubt that the general impression is that I have received as increase of salary of 35 per cent., but when I deduct what I lose on remitting home my real increase is reduced to 9 per cent. HIS EXCELLENCY-I certainly think that it is the intention of the Secretary of State that I not entitled to remit home. If his salary is -us" se, would stand, as it were, in very peculiar i on ou metaness if he loses the right to remit home without getting in exchange any increase of salary. It certainly appears from the Seoretary of State's despatch that it is not intended that any family remittances shall be allowed for the future. My own opinion is that the principle of family remittances is bad, but we are not dealing with that now. We are dealing with the case where officers have had that privilege for some time past and where they might paturally expect that they would continue to enjoy it if they got no increase of salary to make up for Hon. Ho KAI asked if the Colonial Secretary could furnish a return showing how many officers had a right to remit.

The Council will remember that when the discussion on this subject took place here certain resolutions that have been alluded to were passed, and I forwarded a copy of these resolutions with the despatch I transmitted to the Secretary of State, at the same time informing him at what conclusions this Council had arrived. On receiving a reply to that despatch I wrote another, using arguments very similar in effect to these new set out in the addenda. I have not vet received any answer to that, and I cannot therefore very well lay on the table the letter I wrote, but as soon as the miswer arrives I shall be only too glad to lay before the Conneil the despatch I wrote and the reply to the arguments I there set forth. I think the Council acted in a very liberal and generous manner when this question was discussed some menths ago, and the Secretary of State in his letter expressed satisfaction at the course taken by the Legislature with regard to this matter. The reason given for doubling the military contribution was the largely increased expanditure consequent on increasing the garrison, but that expenditure cannot be incurred until the troops are sent out, and it is only natural for this Council to say to the authorities. " We have carried out our part of the agreement, why do you not carry out yours P" Although I am extremely glad to hear the opinions of hon, members, the Connoil must be aware that I am bound to make this a Government vote.
